It gives me great pleasure to welcome radiologists and our surgical and medical colleagues to Amrita Kochi for this year's STII meeting. We are a small fledgling group. But the nature of our work is niche and critical. In a rising India, Transplant and other complex medical procedures will find greater acceptance. We are not going to be small for long! But clinical problems and challenges in this area are already upon us few who work in transplant units and we need to discuss, deliberate and debate now in order to bring clarity, quality and consistency into our practice. I hope this one-day meeting in Kochi will achieve all that and more. Our Amrita Hospital management has been very generous and supportive of this effort. Once again, a warm welcome to all my friends, comrades and colleagues!
